A critical element of professional policing is ensuring the response to resistance we use is appropriate, legal, within policy, reviewed for improvement and enhanced training and supervised. Below is an abbreviated summary of the instances of our response to resistance to arrest:

Officers conducted a pedestrian check on a male they suspected of being a felony fugitive. The suspect provided a false name and once it was confirmed that he was in fact the fugitive, he fled on foot. An Officer deployed his taser which struck the suspect, causing the suspect to fall to the ground. He was arrested without further incident.

Officers responded to a Domestic Battery where it was reported a male was armed with scissors. Officers encountered a highly agitated male who was armed with a handful of rocks. He ignored commands to drop them and then threw them at a window of a car in the driveway, causing the window to shatter. An officer pointed his taser at the male and ordered him to the ground. The male complied and was arrested without further incident. The male turned out to be a 16-year-old juvenile and was petitioned to the juvenile courts.

Officers conducted a pedestrian check. The suspect provided a false name and fled on foot. The Officer tackled the suspect and were able to arrest him without further incident. The male was charged with Obstructing a Peace Officer.

Officers responded to a report of a fight in progress in front of a house. They discovered a teenage female on top of another teenage female engaged in a fist-fight. The officers physically pulled the aggressor off of the other female and had to pick her up and set her on the ground to stop her aggression. The juvenile will be petitioned in juvenile court.

Officers responded to the FHPD lobby after learning that a wanted fugitive was attempting to conduct a tow release. The fugitive was told numerous times he was under arrest but refused to submit to handcuffing. As soon as he lunged for the door he was taken to the ground by the officer and secured in handcuffs. The officer suffered minor abrasions to his hand.
