A critical element of professional policing is ensuring the response to resistance we use is appropriate, legal, within policy, reviewed for improvement and enhanced training and supervised. Below is an abbreviated summary of the instances of our response to resistance to arrest:

Officers responded to a local motel for a report of a male burglarizing the vending machines. Officers located the male near the Metrolink but he fled into the woods. A short time later, officers on the perimeter located the male in a creek bank and ordered him to surrender at gunpoint. The male was taken into custody without further incident.

Officers responded to a home for a reported Domestic Battery. They encountered an intoxicated male who refused to be placed under arrest. The male physically resisted by pulling away and attempting to escape. The male was taken to the ground to stop his ability to physically resist. The male was handcuffed and later charged with Domestic Battery and Resisting Arrest.

Officers were called to a mental subject. They determined the male was wanted on warrants and had been attempting to harm himself. When officers moved in to arrest the male, he suddenly attempted to stab an officer with a concealed reciprocating saw blade. An officer quickly established a clinch and took the male to the ground, while being taken down he tried to stab the officer but failed. The weapon was secured and the male taken into custody. The male was charged with 3 counts of Agg Battery, and counts of Agg Assault of a Peace Officer and Resisting a Peace Officer.

A male fled a traffic stop on foot. The male was apprehended during a foot chase. During the apprehension, officers pointed their tasers at the male while giving him commands to surrender. A bag of methamphetamine was located where the male had fled.

Officers were called to a nuisance offender/habitual drunkard's home by family members as he was refusing to exit a vehicle that did not belong to him. Officers attempted to reason with him but he would not cooperate. Officers attempted to arrest the man, who is missing an arm and a leg from a recent injury, but the man kicked, headbutted and spit at the officers. He kicked the squad car multiple times causing significant body damage to the squad. He grabbed an officer's gun and was forced onto the ground to limit his ability to attack the officers. He had to be physically pushed into the squad car. Neither the offender or officers suffered any injuries.

Officers were conducting surveillance around an apartment complex at the request of the Major Case Squad for suspects wanted for murder. A suspect description was relayed to officers and an officer located the male walking. The officer ordered the suspect to the ground at gunpoint where he was arrested without further incident.
